18. 다음 글의 요지로 가장 적절한 것은?

Penetration means to enter something, not just to stand outside of it. When we want to understand something, we cannot just stand outside and observe it. We have to enter deeply into it and be one with it in order to really understand. If we want to understand a person, we have to feel their feelings, suffer their sufferings, and enjoy their joy. The sutra uses the word "penetration" to mean "full comprehension." The word "comprehend" is made up of the Latin roots com, which means "together in mind," and prehendere, which means "to grasp it or pick it up." So to comprehend something means to pick it up and be one with it. There is no other way to understand something.

* sutra: 경전

① 지나친 감정 이입은 정신 건강에 해롭다.
② 어떤 것을 이해하려면 그것과 합일되어야 한다.
③ 사회 현상을 완전히 객관적으로 바라보기는 어렵다.
④ 단어의 의미는 시간과 장소에 따라 변하기 마련이다.
⑤ 이성과 감정은 배타적이 아니라 상보적인 관계에 있다.

19. 다음 글에 드러난 'I'의 심경으로 가장 적절한 것은?

They look at each other, and then they start having a conversation in Spanish. I wish I could understand them because it seems like they're saying such beautiful things to each other. It seems like they're becoming one person, like they belong to each other — and I don't belong to anyone. That makes me feel left out, so I cry. I see Gloria and Antonio, and they're happy as always. They speak beautiful words reminiscent of the feelings evoked by the sky and ocean. And me? I can't say the same for myself. I can't speak what they speak, and I can't understand what they say.

* reminiscent: 연상시키는

① sad and isolated ② pleased and hopeful
③ bored and indifferent ④ excited and satisfied
⑤ scared and frightened

【20～21】 다음 글의 주제로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

20. Building confidence through adversity begins by having athletes experience difficult situations in training that they will likely face in competition. This exposure to adversity in training provides several essential benefits. It demonstrates athletes' competence to perform well under difficult conditions. It teaches athletes skills they can use to perform at a higher level in competition. It helps them develop a positive attitude toward adversity, so when they are faced with it in competition, they are motivated to react well to it rather than avoid it. Exposure to adversity during training also prepares athletes for the difficulties that they will inevitably experience when they perform in important competitions.

* adversity: 역경, 어려움

① the negative effects of too much adversity
② the necessity of patience in performing tasks
③ a coach's role in boosting an athlete's confidence
④ the importance of having a positive attitude toward life
⑤ the benefits of exposing athletes to difficulty in training

21. While reading, we often highlight the parts that we think are important. One problem of this is deciding what to highlight. Too little, and you may neglect important information; too much, and the method loses its effectiveness. If everything is highlighted, then nothing is! Another weakness of highlighting is that you can't use a highlighter to record your thoughts, reflections, comments, or questions about the text you are reading. That can lead to yet another difficulty: in the absence of notes, you may not remember why you chose to highlight certain terms, examples, or ideas over others. Finally, if you want to sell your books at the end of the semester, you may not be able to find a buyer for a textbook that is heavily highlighted.

① disadvantages of highlighting
② effective ways of highlighting
③ the importance of highlighting
④ the best tools for highlighting
⑤ the adequate amount of highlighting

【22～23】 다음 글의 제목으로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

22. At times, you may be giving a presentation in an environment that is not equipped with current technology, precluding you from using computer tools. If you have scheduled equipment from an outside source, you need to prepare for the possibility that the equipment may not arrive on time or may not work the way you anticipated. Get to your speaking location early, practice using your presentation aids with the available equipment, and have a backup plan, just in case. This is especially true when using computers and projection units from an outside source. Being prepared in this case means you might bring your own laptop and cable cords, and handouts in case the equipment still fails you. Frankly, if you do a lot of public speaking, you might invest in your own projection unit, as well.

* preclude: ~하지 못하게 하다

① Forget about Negative Thoughts
② Be Ready for Equipment Failure
③ Practice Speech Delivery in Advance
④ Use as Many Visual Aids as Possible
⑤ Start Your Speech with a Short Story

23. Scientists at Cornell University examined the ways physicians make medical diagnoses by having them think aloud while they evaluated the case of a patient with liver disease. Astonishingly, this research team found that when they gave physicians a small gift — simply a bag of sweets — those physicians were better at uniting case information and less likely to stick to their initial ideas or jump to hasty conclusions in their diagnosis. Whether you're the physician or the patient, I think you'd agree that better clinical reasoning is a good thing. Perhaps alongside the list of physical complaints we bring to our doctor's office, we should also bring small gifts or act of kindness. [3점]

* think aloud: 생각을 입 밖에 내어 말하다

① Initial Ideas Can Turn Out Correct
② Not All Medical Diagnoses Are Accurate
③ Thinking Aloud Can Do Unexpected Wonders
④ A Small Gift Can Make a Difference for Doctors
⑤ The Number of Gifts You Give Really Doesn't Matter

A few years later, ④the man — who did not know a word of Latin — succeeded in finding the famous doctor. "I would like to thank you for your diagnosis. 31. If you are suffering from anorexia, you may feel afraid that once you start eating, you will not be able to stop. You are so hungry all the time that you feel as if you could eat and eat and never stop. This doesn't actually happen, and you will soon discover that you _____. When I was first anorexic, I planned to give myself just one day off from my diet. During this day, I allowed myself to eat anything I wanted. I started the day by eating some cookies and was certain that I could easily eat a whole bag because I craved them so strongly. I'd only had three cookies before finding myself feeling sick and full. 32. When we drive a car or scooter, we do not always drive at the same speed. We drive at high speeds on the highways and various moderate rates in the city. Similarly, a good reader is very much like a good driver. A good reader may be able to read a thousand words per minute (WPM), but he will not use that speed on everything he reads. A good researcher may obtain a rate of 1,000 WPM as he searches for relevant research material from different sources, but once he finds something usable, he may need to slow down to a 100 WPM. Similarly, a good reader may read his social science textbook at rates between 500 and 600 WPM, but it may take him 150 WPM to read his science or mathematics textbook. Just as a driver or researcher has _____, so does a good reader. [3점]

① a lot of colleagues
② a wide range of speeds
③ an objective perspective
④ a strong desire for exploration
⑤ mental maps in his or her head

33. A client of mine was upset because her husband did not enjoy what she had cooked for dinner. She was proud of the effort she had made to produce the meal. He didn't like the new dish, and she was very shocked. She had felt great about what she had prepared until she saw his reaction. She tried something new and took a risk, but he didn't like it. And she was unable to console herself. When we are emotionally dependent, we look for personal recognition from others. We develop what David Schnarch, Ph.D., refers to as a "reflected self-image." Our self-image is determined by _____.

① deep self-reflection
② our strong willpower
③ what we have experienced
④ how others behave toward us
⑤ the balance between body and soul

Next time you plan to go somewhere, remember to toss a reusable drinking bottle in your backpack to eliminate your use of disposable water bottles. ①According to Treehugger (www.treehugger.com), approximately 1.5 million barrels of oil are used to make plastic water bottles every year. ②That's enough to run 100,000 cars for a whole year; and transporting these bottles burns even more oil. ③Paper bags require lots of trees, whereas plastic bags are made with just petroleum. ④In addition, it takes millions of gallons of water to produce plastic water bottles; and an additional two gallons of water must be wasted in the water-filtering process for every gallon that goes into the bottles. ⑤What's worse, nearly 90 percent of water bottles are not recycled and wind up in landfills where they take thousands of years to be broken down into safe by-products.

> Almost everyone has experienced unexpectedly strong memories stirred by a scent. This is probably because scent cannot be easily rehearsed and revived in the memory. The real thing is needed to revive and relive the memory associated with a certain scent. We can safely say that the awakening of memories by smell is strong because they are unexpected and less often encountered. Maylor, Carter and Hallett (2002) found that, for both younger and older adults, presenting a cue word in combination with an aroma attached to the word (e.g. the word 'rose' in combination with the smell of rose oil) doubled the number of memories produced.

An egg cream is a refreshing cold drink that started in New York City soda shops about a hundred years ago. It's made of milk, flavored syrup (chocolate or vanilla), and soda water. Does it contain eggs? No. Does it contain cream? No. But it's called an egg cream. That's just the way it is. Don't worry about it.

But some people do worry about it. They find such disagreements annoying, frustrating, or even disturbing. They want everything in life to be neat and tidy. They want things to make sense. So when they encounter something that violates the "rules" as they see them, they start to get a little anxious. They start searching for explanations to satisfy _____.

The world is full of disagreements, paradoxes, and problems that are beyond our understanding. Names aren't always descriptive. People aren't always predictable. Instruction manuals aren't always clear. Fast food isn't always served fast. Accept the fact that some things just aren't going to make sense. But that's really okay because both the logical and the nonsensical are threads in the same rich tapestry. We call it life.

* tapestry: 태피스트리(여러 가지 색실로 그림을 짜 넣은 직물)

And every night, Rags would leave the prison and return in the morning.

* warden: 교도소장

(D)

Yet every time he'd move to wind the bed sheets to hang himself, Rags would softly growl outside his cell. Knowing that if he continued, Rags would bark and alert the guards, the prisoner was unable to act on his plan. At last (e)he realized that there was someone who really cared if he lived or died — Rags. Secure in this knowledge, he had gratefully chosen to live.
